ONE MORE TIME....

Will you join in support?

For education, and the first bond issue proposal in 17 or more years for a broad range of physical plant needs in the Cameron Independent School District?

Yes? Good!

Emphatically? Great!

In the spirit of Folk Fete and for kids, present or future, let's build this system to AAA status it now claims.

All the plans are not itemized, but the idea is sound, progressive, necessary and worthwhile. That should encompass just about all of us.

Your Herald will publish ample information about proposals, needs, costs. The vote should be resounding and favorable. That is not a prediction, but the choice.

We really have no alternative, but to move with enormous progress of the balance of the community, business, industry, residential, institutional. It would be a major omission not to carry through to a school system so vital to so many for so numerous reasons.

You think of some. I think of some. We think of some. And we'll agree this is a worthwhile proposal and perhaps not big enough for the generation ahead that will continue to build as so many have built this community in recent years.

With new buildings going up and old ones coming down Cameron is moving ahead with momentum usually associated only with metropolitan areas.

It certainly is contrast to the man who said his central Texas hometown was so strict that even the katydids didn't dare and so slow the town didn't get June bugs until nearly August.

Youths To Pay Bus Damage

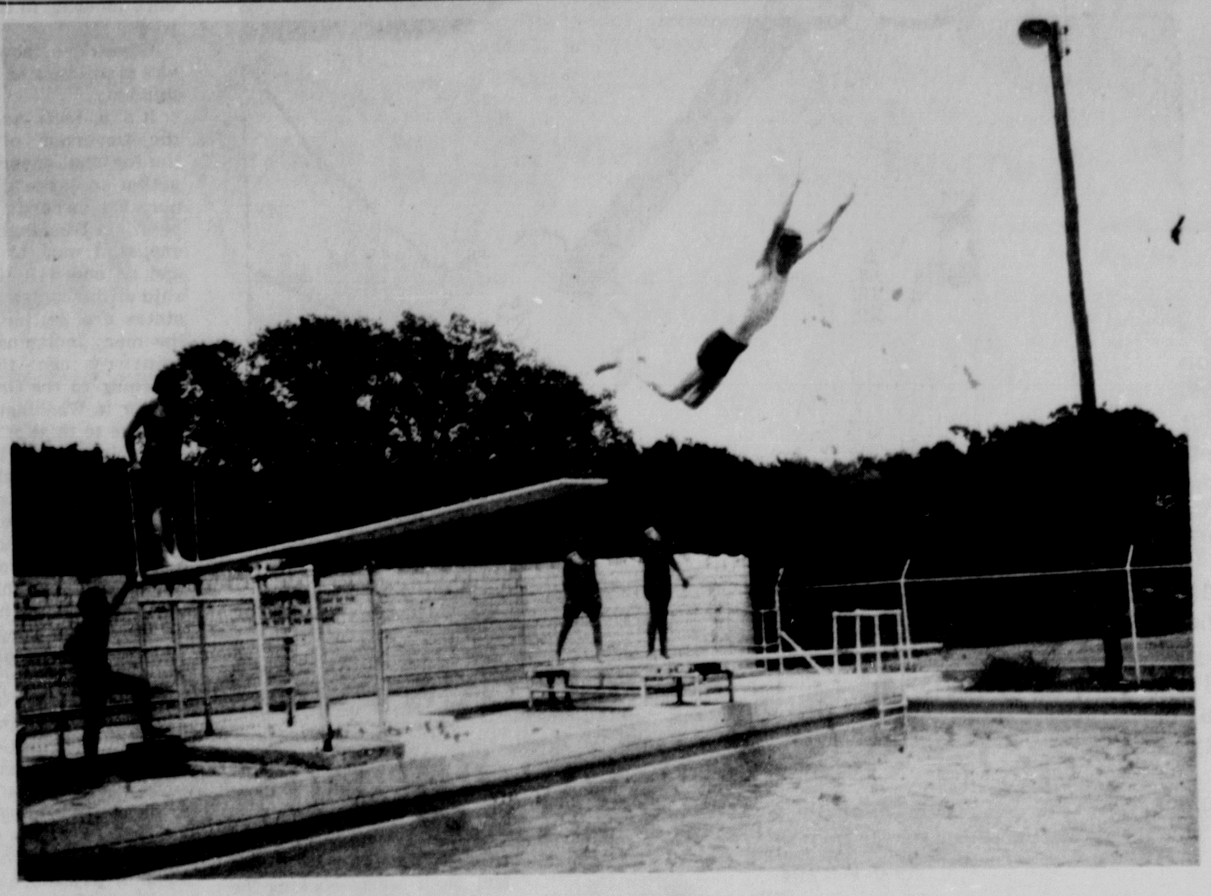
Milano School officials declined to press charges against three Rockdale youths in connection with a breakin at the school and damaging a school bus, according to County Atty. John Henderson.

The youths, two who are 17 and one 14, are paying for the damage done to the bus. About $200 damage was done by cutting the bus seats.

Inside the school, cattle feeding syrup was poured on the floor and on the school's trophy case.

FORMS AVAILABLE

Copies of a petition to ask for new legislation on drug controls are available at the Citizens National Bank and First National Bank at Cameron. A petition form is also reproduced on an inside page of this edition of The Herald.



EARLY SUMMER HEAT brings out the swimmers and waders at the city pool, and some of the best fun is to be had off the high diving board.

Cameron Sees Building Boom

Cameron is having a building boom.

Building permits in the city for the first six months of 1972 have soared to a total of $553,850, with new buildings adding the largest amount to the total.

Permits for May and the first part of June added $293,200 to the total of $260,650 rung up for the first four months of the year.

Heading the list of permits for May and June is Keith's Minimax, a $110,000 structure now under construction. Expansion of the Colonial Nursing Home by CCRW Investments adds $88,000, and new construction for Ben Milam Savings and Loan adds $57,500.

Other permits issued in May and June include $14,500 for a new warehouse for the Coca Cola Bottling Co., $20,500 for new homes, and $2,700 for repairs or enlargements to homes.

Edwin Bigbee, City Code Inspector, said no permit has been issued as yet for the new clinic being built next to St. Edward Hospital, but that job is estimated to amount to $150,000. Construction has started on the clinic.

The May and June totals brings construction of new homes for the year up to $185,850 and new buildings up to $224,000. Repairs, enlargements and rehabilitation permits for the year total $29,500.

County OKs Attorney's Resignation

County Commissioners Monday accepted the formal resignation of County Atty. John B. Henderson, Jr., effective July 31 and appointed a justice of peace for the Thorndale precinct.

County-Atty. Henderson is returning to full time private law practice.

Charles C. Smith, Democratic nominee unopposed for the post, was appointed to serve out Henderson's unexpired term.

In a letter to County Judge O. B. Harden and Commissioners Court, Henderson expressed appreciation for the co-operation and assistance of county law officials, judges and individual citizens during his years of service.

Commissioners voted unanimously to appoint Howard Buchanan to the post of justice of peace in Thorndale. Commissioner Caffey made the motion, seconded by Commissioner Lavert McKinney.

The Thorndale precinct had been without services of a justice of peace since E. C. Hoppe filled the post more than two years ago, Caffey said.

Commissioners earlier in the meeting discussed the possibilities of closing a few more rural voting boxes. Rice School House voted less than 50 votes in the primaries, one official said.

McKinney said he may have a couple of boxes voting under 50 in the Cameron precinct.

Discussion came up as commissioners looked over lists of election judges and alternate judges which are regularly updated for elections.

A new list of judges and alternates for the general election in November is required by July, according to County Clerk Wayne Wieser.

In discussions about county bridges and dump ground problems. Commissioner Albert Timmerman of Rockdale said someone had left a couple of kitchen appliances out in the open in his precinct. McKinney said he was replacing old plank bridges with culvert type construction on rural roads. Commissioner Adolph Gresak and the other commissioners were exchanging notes on bridge material costs, prices ranging on the same materials from about $350 to $1100, one official said.

Commissioners also approved bond for a constable Theo Telg, Precinct 3. He is filling and unexpired term though he was elected to the post effective January 1, 1973.

County Auditor John Andres said it would cost about $600 to cover the front half of the floor at the County Health Unit offices on South Houston, including underlay work.

Judge Harden said Cameron is one of eight communities hosting a children's eight-weeks summer program through the Mental Health Outreach program. And he said the Cameron Schools would allow use of playground area and restrooms, but that classroom space would not be available.

FARM BUREAU TO SPONSOR QUEEN CONTEST

The Milam County Farm Bureau is sponsoring a Queen Contest and a Talent Find program, both to be held July 15.

The queen contest is open to sisters and daughters of Farm Bureau members. They must be single, between the ages of 16 and 22 and never have been married.

The winner will receive a $50 award and will be eligible to enter the district queen contest. The runnerup will receive $25 and all other contestants $10.

The district winner will receive an expense-paid trip to the state convention.

Interested contestants may call the Farm Bureau office in Cameron for more information. All applications must be in by July 1.

The talent find program is open to anyone between the ages of 17 and 30. They must be a Farm Bureau member or a member of a Farm Bureau family and must be an amateur. Contestants should contact the local Farm Bureau office by July 1 also.

Street Dance Ends Folk Fete

Dancing in the street Saturday night, the 1972 Folk Fete crowd drew to a close a more fun-filled and exciting fete than those in previous years. Crowds were estimated at "three or four times" as great as last year, when 8,000 attended.

Clouds threatened rain several times during Saturday, but the throngs were undiminished in the park, center of the activities, and at the parade Saturday.

The German Dancers float, depicting a giant dachshund, won first place in the parade contest. Other standouts were out of town floats, motorcycle club, Shriners, and two clowns.

The parade opened Saturday's festivities, which continued at the park after the parade. Crowds filled the park as food booths did a thriving business.

A domino tourney got underway at 11 a.m., and was won by a father-son team from Buckholts, Joe Vansa and his son, Adolph. They defeated T. A. Weems and Clifford Caffey in the finals.

Thirteen fiddlers from across the state entered the fiddle contest, competing for a total of $250 in prize money.

Claude Henson of Fort Worth won first place in the category for fiddlers age 60 or more followed by Parvin Hoffman of San Antonio and Slim Bellville of Waco. They received prizes of $50, $35, and $15 respectively.

Then the younger fiddlers took the stage. Bill Gilbert of Millsap took first place, Armond Hall of Dallas second and Ervin Schneider of Lexington third and won the same prizes as the oldtimers.

In the playoff for the $50 grand prize, Gilbert, a lean left-hander, won it over Henson.

Additional music was then offered by John Dodd of Milano and Hardy Ellison of Franklin, two of the contest judges.

The Folk Fete Tour continued from 1 until 4 p.m. with stops at Ondrej's Blacksmith Shop, E. L. Wied Hardware, the Episcopal Church, the Norris Rogers home, the Camp home, and the James Brock studio.

'Black Box' Follows President

By Michael Prentice
Reuter Correspondent

WASHINGTON

Even in the Kremlin and Peking's Forbidden City, the man with the black box gave President Nixon the power to wage nuclear war.

The black box -- an object of mystery and awe and the subject of jokes -- contains the codes that would unleash the U. S. nuclear arsenal of missiles and bombers.

When the annoymous-looking man with the box unavoidably is caught in a news photograph near the president, humorists suggest he is carrying the president's sanwiches.

The box, actually a small suitcase of the kind a businessman uses to store his papers, or his sandwiches, goes wherever the president goes at home or abroad.

Even most members of the president's cabinet are only vaguely aware of what is inside. The secret service, which is responsible for the president's safety, will not discuss it beyond saying the president obviously has the means to communicate at all times with his military chiefs.

When President John Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas in November 1963, according to William Manchester, author of "The Death of a President," there was a period of an hour or so during which a Soviet nuclear attack would have crippled U. S. power to retaliate.

The White House and the Defense Department hastily and vehemently denied Manchester's assertion that Lyndon Johnson, when catapulated into the presidency, had no idea what was in the box, or how to retaliate against a Soviet nuclear attack.

Officials said Kennedy had been most insistent that his vice president should know how to use the codes, just in case of such a crisis that occurred in Dallas.

The box, besides giving the president more power than any man in history, is the ultimate safety factor to guard against an accidental nuclear war.

The president is the only man empowered by law to order the firing of nuclear weapons on enemy targets. But what if a "Doctor Strangelove" or someone with access to the nuclear button suddenly lost his senses and decided to launch a nuclear weapon?

In theory -- a theory officials hope will never be fully tested -- it would be impossible to launch any nuclear missile or bomber without the codes contained in the black box.

The box is always as safe, if not safer, than the president himself. Any place the president goes is checked out and guarded in advance by the secret service.

And while it is impossible to completely guarantee the safety of the president, there seems little possibility of anyone ever stealing the box, which is always in the view of White House reporters who regularly follow the president.

A prime requirement of the carrier of the box is that he should be able to make himself inconspicuous -- something the president's bodyguards in the secret service also try to do, with limited success.

When Mr. and Mrs. Nixon went to the ballet in Peking, the guardian of the black box sat a discreet distance away in the stalls, with a modest pretence that he was just another ballet lover.

Actually, there is not one "little man with the suitcase" who follows the president around. Various members of the presidential security detail are delegated to carry the box.

At the height of the cold war, the chances the box would ever be used were clearly greater than they are today. But despite the first step to curb nuclear arms taken while Nixon was in Moscow, the box seems certain to be a permanent fixture on every future president's travels.

Besides the codes, the box is also believed to contain plans and options open to the president if nuclear war should break out.

In the event of a surprise or accidental nuclear attack against the United States, there would be little or no time for the president to consult his closest advisers, let alone Congress, which legally must declare war.

A GIANT DACHSHUND stole the show at Saturday's Folk Fete parade, with the German Folk Dancers amid a flowery setting. The float was one of many brightening the annual event.

A Generation Of Builders...

First-half 1972 is heading for the $600,000 mark in new construction around Cameron.

Starts at sites are underway throughout the city. One cannot drive more than two or three blocks without seeing one or more projects underway.

This is the natural result, the circling out of the downtown renewal, which is dramatically changing the emerging central city, albeit small.

We have inquired of residents who have lived here 60 years or more and they cannot recall any sequel to this story. Main construction in this town began in the 1890s and continued through the early 1920s, a span of about 30 years.

This record may be surpassed here in about two or three years.

We can argue the base of this important change until the snow melts at the Poles, but we can agree this is the healthiest development, co-equal developments in Milam County seat in its history.

This is truly a generation of builders.

This New Reconstruction

Common Cause, John Gardner's national public interest lobby, is opening offices in Austin.

Why?

Because, says CC State Coordinator, Milton Tobian, "the zeal for reform here is running higher than any other time in the history of mankind."

"Basically, they (Common Cause) wanted to test the idea in a major state, and with the Dowdys and Mutschers and others who've stubbed their toes here in the last one and a half years, Texas people are more aware of the needs for reform."

The National Common Cause effort began about two years ago by soliticting funds. Contributions came from a broad spectrum of society, ranging from housewives to businessmen to students, according to The Dallas News.

Goals of the Texas Common Cause effort would include tighter lobbying controls, new open meeting laws, stronger conflict of interest regulations and new campaign financing controls.

Timing of this organization's arrival in Texas follows a historic change in the leadership in conservative and liberal sides of the Democratic party. Mrs. Sissy Farenthold emerged about a liberal 45 percent loser to Dolph Briscoe's 55 percent conservative win in the second primary. Both were reform candidates in the same party. Two incumbents finished third and fourth in the race.

These developments also heighten interest in a two-party system in Texas, a fait non compli, except for Senator John Tower's election, since Reconstruction.

Another interest Common Cause brings is in proposals for Consitutional revision in Texas, the first since 1876, also the days of Reconstruction.

Since Texas is the nation's fourth most populous state, the second largest and potentially the greatest in agribusiness and industry, Common Cause can help this new reconstruction.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

DISTRUSTS LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

SEN. PAUL J. FANNIN (Ariz.) ". . . I am deeply concerned about the apparent growth of the idea that in order for a person or an organization to be effective and useful, the person or organization must actively work for or noisily advocate a political viewpoint.

"This concern has grown as I have seen what has happened lately to the League of Women Voters. . .

"The league -- at least a portion of the league -- has become partisan and activist. This is detrimental to this once-proud organization. I would hope that the league can regain its position of trust in our country, and that it will not become just another one of the many partisan or activist groups propagandizing -- for liberal causes. . .

"PHOENIX GAZETTE editorial writer Jay Brashear recently wrote a very good article concerning the League of Women Voters. I ask unanimous consent that the article be printer in the Record." (Condensed article follows:)

(By Jay Brashear)

With the leadership of the League of Women Voters apparently unable to resist the temptation of ideological political activism, there may be a need for a new organization of women - or men or both -- to pick up the league's old cause: better government through increased citizen participation.

At its annual convention in Atlanta last week, the National League of Women Voters approved a resolution by a vote of 760 to 545 calling for the immediate and complete withdrawal of American troops from Southeast Asia. That is an ideologically partisan position if ever there was one: It denounces the policy of the Nixon administration and endorses the position of George McGovern and other Liberal Democrat hopefuls.

The league's credibility would have been EQUALLY DAMAGED, of course, if the vote on the war resolution had gone the other way.

Back in 1971, the same sort of thing happened closer to home. The Tuscon League of Women Voters engaged in an effort to get welfare payments increased in Arizona.

Unless the brooms are wielded soon, however, the League of Women Voters will become a part of the political spectrum located somewhere close to the Americans for Democratic Action. To be as effective as it once was, it can't be in the spectrum at all.

• • • • •

CRUMP'S COMMENT

The League of Women Voters is a political organization in the sense that it takes positions on governmental issues and works to obtain support for any legislative issue on which it takes a stand.

The 1,200 leagues in America have supported programs from the merit system in government to civilian control of atomic energy.

Massive Power Blackouts Could 'Heat' Conventions

By Malcolm Blafour
Reuter Correspondent

MIAMI

While planners for the Democratic and Republican party conventions concern themselves over anticipated hordes of demonstrators--the "very real danger" of a massive power blackout passes almost unnoticed.

"It's going to be a rugged summer," says Florida Power and Light Co. (FPL) spokesman Lory Snipes. "Our power reserves in July will be down to a record low 2.1 per cent."

The Federal Power Commission considers a 15-to-20 percent reserve as adequate for reliable electric service.

Snipes said that FPL is "holding its breath" that there won't be any breakdown in generating equipment during either convention. "A breakdown in a single unit could cause brownouts and blackouts," he said.

With tens of thousands of Americans settling in sunny south Florida each year, Florida Power and Light Co. has become the fastest growing electric utility in the nation, struggling to generate power to match the population explosion. Presently 1,400,000 customers -- most of them in south Florida -- are served by the giant utility. The number grows daily.

This is the third straight summer FPL has been faced with an inadequate power supply. Only this year the shortage is dramatized by the nominating conventions.

FPL officials blame the power shortages on a series of licensing delays for two nuclear units at the Turkey Point plant, 40 miles south of Miami. A final license for the nuclear units has been held up by the Atomic Energy Commission until studies are completed on the plant's operating safety.

Already more than two years behind schedule, Turkey Point has been beset by problems since the first sod was turned -- ranging from labor strikes to ecologist outcries.

Snipes points out, however, the ecologists cannot be blamed for any delays. "Its the darn red tape with our licenses.

"Construction work went right on ahead while we held those 30 public hearings on Turkey Point. No, we can't blame the ecologists."

When construction work began the plant with its nature preserve and scout camps, was hailed in the national press as a prime example how industry can work hand in hand with conservation -- until conservationists maintained that warm water discharges into Biscayne Bay from the plant could cause "irreparable biological damage."

After several hearings the utility was ordered to build a cooling lake and additional cooling canals at the plant site.

FPL expects to have 12 gas turbine "peaking units" in service at Fort Lauderdale, before the Democratic convention. These units, similar to jet engines, can be turned on almost instantly during periods of peak electrical usage.

"Peak periods occur generally between 5 and 8 p.m.," said Snipes. "That's when dad gets home from work, cuts on the air conditioner and mom starts cooking the evening meal.

"If the situation gets critical during the conventions, we may be able to borrow power from other Florida utilities. But they have similar problems to ours, and are also very low on reserves."

During July, FPL's total generating capability will be 6,38? megawats.

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editar:

I knew this was the day of the oppressed minorities but didn't know how widespread the thing had gotten till I read an account of the National Governors' Conference meeting in Houston last week.

Governors now consider themselves an oppressed minority.

It's a fact. According to the Governor of Montana, the National government has gotten so large that governors have a hard time getting heard in Washington. "I can say all I want to by myself and no one will listen," he said at the conference. "The states are getting to be like the many Indian nations of a century ago: they're all listening to the Great White Father in Washington."

Come to think of it, there's something to this. I can name the governor of this state, but blamed if I can think of the name of the governor of Arizona or Oklahoma. And if a man wants something done about something in his area, who does he write? He writes his Congressman or Senator. Who else? Who ever heard of writing his Governor? Maybe occasionally they'll write their state legislator, but the Governor?

This seems a shame. Men work hard to get elected governor, spending five or six times what the job pays, and the rest of the people ought to pay more attention to them. They ought to at least send them carbon copies of all letters they write to Washington.

Incidentally, the maintopic of discussion at the Governors' Conference was revenue - sharing. They want Washington to split up some of the tax money it's getting and give it to the states to spend as they please.

This is a good idea, as everybody knows the states certainly have a pressing need for more money and if I was a governor I'd sit down right now and write my Congressman about it. Write it in longhand on tablet paper. They say they pay more attention to simple letters that come straight from the hearts of unknown constituents.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Ground Beef Version of Stroganoff Gives Economical Elegance

As the popularity of that famous Russian Stroganoff has grown in America, considerable culinary liberty has been taken in its preparation. Two ingredients, however, remain constant—beef and sour cream.

Economical ground beef substitutes for strips of steak in this tasty version of the traditional dish. The reduction of sour cream to one-half cup in this recipe cuts calories as well as cost, points out Reba Staggs, National Live Stock and Meat Board.

Beef Balls Stroganoff

2 pounds ground beef
½ cup finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons catsup
2 tablespoons cooking fat
1 jar (4 ounces) sliced mushrooms
Water
1 beef bouiilon cube
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
1 cup dairy sour cream
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Combine ground beef with onion, 1 tablespoon flour, salt, pepper and catsup and shape into 16 balls. Brown lightly on all sides in fat. Pour off drippings. Drain mushrooms; reserve liquid and add water to make 1 cup. Blend 1 tablespoon flour with ¼ cup of the liquid. Heat remaining liquid to boiling and dissolve bouillon cube in it. Stir into flour paste to blend. Stir in Worcestershire sauce and mustard. Add to meat balls. Add reserved mushrooms and cook over low heat 15 minutes. Remove meat balls from pan. Place sour cream in bowl and gradually add gravy to it, stirring to blend. Return meat balls and sour cream mixture to pan. Add chopped parsley. Heat through and serve on noodles. 6 servings.

County Agent's Notes

Screwworm Cases Show Big Jump

By Bill McCutchen
Milam County Agent

Over 4,000 cases of screwworms have been reported in Texas this year. This is by far the worst outbreak since the eradication program began 10 years ago and is already 10 times more cases than were reported for the entire year of 1971.

Although no cases have been confirmed in Milam County outbreaks have been reported in neighboring counties and producers are asked to treat all wounds with screwworm protectants until they are healed and to treat new-born calves. 70 percent of the cases being reported are from navels of new-born calves, 20 percent are from man made wounds of dehorning, castrating and other deliberate surgery, and 10 percent are occuring in accidental wounds.

Larvae from infested animal wounds should be collected and sent to the Screwworm Eradication Laboratory, P. O. Box 969, Mission, Texas 78572 for identitication. This provides eradication officials with information on where screwworms are occuring and the extent of infestations. Fly-drop areas and other program efforts are determined from information and samples furnished by producers, so producers play an extremely vital role in the screwworm program.

Collection vials are available in the county extension office. Please help yourself by helping this program.

STILES FIELD DAY

The Stiles Field Day is schedule for June 20. The tours will start at 2 p.m. and a good turnout from Milam County is expected.

As in the past tickets for the free barbecue are available for the asking at the Milam County Extension office.

BRUCELLOSIS PROGRAM

Skip Nobles, representing the Texas Animal Health Commission in Milam County said last Thursday that the Brucellosis recertification effort is beginning to bog down and help is needed.

Nobles estimated that in the neighborhood of 1300-1400 head have been tested to date. Some 2,000 head must be tested before September if the county is to retain its modified-certified status.

If you will test your cattle you will be doing yourself and your neighbors a service in helping to retain the modified-certified status in the county.

If you will test please contact the county extension office in Cameron and we will have the Texas Animal Health Commission representative contact you for a suitable date.

Conferees OK Rural Bill

WASHINGTON

House and Senate conferees agreed today on a Rural Development bill designed to raise the standard of living of millions of families on farms and in small communities throughout the land.

Headed by Chairmen W. R. Poage, of the House Agriculture Committee, and Herman E. Talmadge, of the Senate Agriculture and Forestry Committee, the conferees approved provisions which should help stem the trek of Americans from rural areas to the crowded ghettoes in the cities, where many go on relief.

"I think this is one of the most important measures to come before Congress in years, in that it strikes at the basic cause of migration to our overcrowded cities," said Cong. Poage. "I hope it will soon become law."

The compromise legislation, which now goes back to the House and Senate for approval provides approximately $500 million in new grant authority to improve living conditions through such programs as pollution abatement and establishment of industrial centers which will provide jobs for unemployed. The loan authority for various existing rural development programs is greatly expanded.

Generally the terms of the bill will cover rural areas and communities of up to 10,000 population. Industrial loans, however, could be made in communities of up to 50,000 population.

The bill provides for maximum cooperation between the Farmers Home Administration and private financial institutions by making use of guaranteed loan programs. One section provides for protection of communities with existing industrial establishments from having their enterprises pirated away by other communities which can qualify for assistance under the legislation.

The bill triples the authority ($300 million) for assistance to small communities under the Poage-Aiken Act (now $100 million) for use in construction of water and waste disposal projects. It provides $75 million assistance for pollution abatement projects.

State Calls For VEE Vaccination

Hot, summer weather is on the way and mosquitoes are becoming active. This could be bad news to horse owners who have not vaccinated their animals for VEE (Venezuelan equine encephalomyelitis), the dreaded sleeping sickness spread by mosquitoes which killed so many horses last year.

"It's urgent that all horses, mules and donkeys that were not vaccinated last year be vaccinated as soon as possible," emphasizes Dr. James Armstrong, veterinarian with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Animals that were vaccinated during last year's massive vaccination program need not be vaccinated this year since immunity from the VEE vaccine appears to last at least two years. However, if there is any doubt about whether or not the animal was vaccinated last year, by all means vaccinate again."

The Texas A&M University specialist hastens to add that there is one exception to the re-vaccination rule. "Foals that were vaccinated in 1971 when they were less than six months old should be re-vaccinated."

In high risk areas such as Texas, the U. S. Department of Agriculture recommends vaccinating pregnant mares and foals under two weeks of age during the mosquito season. Studies are presently under way to determine whether there is any danger to mares or unborn foals if vaccinated during pregnancy.

Armstrong reminds horse owners to also vaccinate their animals against western and eastern strains of the sleeping sickness. This should be an annual vaccination. All vaccinations can be given during the veterinarian's single visit.

"Texas is still under federal quarantine for VEE," adds the veterinarian. "Thus horses must have been vaccinated for VEE at least 14 days before being allowed to move across the state line. A vaccination certificate must accompany the animal."

Armstrong suggests that horse owners check their animals regularly for any signs of illness that might be an indication of VEE. At the onset of the disease, the animal loses its appetite, is depressed and has a fever. If any of these signs appear, a veterinarian should be contacted at once so that an accurate diagnosis can be made.

The veterinarian also recommends that horse owners spray their animals, especially those in stables or in confinement, for mosquitoes and other biting insects.

PRODUCTIVITY

Productivity in the Federal Government rose more than 8 percent between fiscal 1967 and 1971. This represents an annual rate of gain of approximately 2 percent, compared with a rise of approximately 1.5 percent in the private non-farm sector over the same period.

Farmcast

A Weekly Report Of Agri-Business News

Compiled From Sources
Of The Texas Department of Agriculture
John C. White, Commissioner

Nearly all of Texas Below Normal Rainfall During February, March, April . . . Texas Farm Prices Show Gain . . . Sheep On Feed Up 61 Per Cent . . . Red Meat Production Down 7 Per Cent . . .

Only the southern tip of Texas had rainfall above normal during February, March and April, the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service notes. Rains in the Lower Valley were 123 per cent of normal. The Dalhart area had only 15 per cent of normal for the three months.

During May, the Trans-Pecos area had the lowest rainfall total with 1.24 inches. The upper coastal areas had the largest rainfall in May with slightly more than nine inches.

Crops generally throughout the state were making good growth. Wheat harvest is speeding up; oat harvest more than two-thirds complete. Grain sorghum harvest will soon be in full swing.

FARM PRICES are up 15 per cent from a year ago. Farm parity at 73 per cent, however, still means that agriculture is more than one-fourth below the rest of the economy.

All poultry and eggs were down from a month ago with the exception of chickens and broilers which were unchanged. All poultry and eggs were the same or down compared to a year ago. Wool and mohair were above last month and a year ago.

Commodity prices in Texas include wheat $1.43 bushel, up a penny from 1971; corn $1.36 bushel, up 17 cents from last year; grain sorghum $1.95 per hundredweight, down 50 cents from 1971; cotton 26 cents per pound, up five cents from 1971; hogs $24.20 per hundredweight, up $5.40 from last year; beef cattle $33.80 per hundredweight; up $13.06 from 1971; sheep $11, up $3.24 from last year; lambs $32, up $9.34 from 1971; broilers 13.5 cents per pound, down one cent from 1971; eggs 27 cents per dozen, down 4 cents.

DRYLOT SHEEP feeders with a lot capacity of 2,000 head or more had 103,000 sheep and lambs on feed for slaughter June 1. This is 61 per cent above the number on feed a month earlier but 22 per cent below the number on feed June 1 last year.

Placements during May totaled 70,000 head with a total of 12 feeders reporting 1,000 more head on feed June 1.

Marketings during May, 31,000 head, 5,000 head above the intended marketings reported for May 1.

Current intentions to market the 103,000 head are: June, 59,000; July, 41,000 head; and August, 3,000.

RED MEAT production in Texas during April was down seven per cent from the previous month and 14 per cent below April, 1971. Red meat production in April was 176.3 million pounds. Red meat production during the first four months of 1972 totaled 706.7 million pounds.

Cattle slaughtered during April totaled 285,000 head, 7,000 head below the number slaughtered last month and 41,000 less than April, 1971.

Hog slaughter during April numbered 157,000 head, 45,000 less than April of 1971.

Sheep and lambs killed during April numbered 124,000 head, which is 24,000 less than last year.

Average live weight of cattle slaughtered during April was 883 pounds compared with 888 pounds last year. Hog slaughter averaged 240 pounds compared with 231 pounds in 1971.

ASCS NEWS

Rapid growth of forward contracting in cotton -- the producer's selling his crop in advance -- may have added to the perennial cotton bale packaging problem.

It has been reported that a significant quantity of inferior-quality and inadequate-size nonspecification bagging has been sold to ginners this year supposedly for wrapping cotton that has been sold under crop contracts.

Ginners and producers should be aware of the possible consequences that may result from the use of inferior-quality bagging and ties that do not meet CCC specifications. In the first place, use of such material could result in higher handling costs in compressing, storing, and shipping the cotton.

Secondly, damage of cotton quality attributable to inferior packaging materials could result in claims being asserted by the using mill against the seller of the cotton. Claims asserted under any of these situations could be assessed against the producer and/or ginner.

Further, if the market price of cotton at harvest time is less than the contract price, and if the bales are packaged in inferior materials, the buyer may have a legal excuse for refusing to accept delivery of the cotton against the contract.

Any of these actions could result in expensive and time-consuming litigation. In addition, the bales of cotton packaged in such nonspecification material would not be eligible for CCC loans.

As a requirement for CCC loan eligibility, cotton must be packaged either in materials which meet U.S. Department of Agriculture specifications, or in experimental materials identified with the experimental programs of the Joint Industry Bale Packaging Committee.

Air Conditioning Course At TSTI

An evening program in basic air conditioning will be offered on the James Connally Campus of the Texas State Technical Institute.

Registration is scheduled Tuesday, June 13, from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. in Bldg. 33-4.

The course will cover fundamentals of refrigeration cycle, process and physical laws, as well as the proper use of tools, refrigerants, correct procedures, reciprocating compressor construction, and other types of trouble shooting.

Classes will be held two nights each week for a total of 15 weeks. For more information contact Continuing Education Division, TSTI, 799-3611, Ext. 263.

Farm Union To 'Drive In'

Concerned farmers and ranchers will visit members of the legislature during the special session on Tuesday, June 20. Texas Farmers Union is planning a "Drive-In" to Austin and members from across the state will spend a full day talking with legislators on important state legislation including trailer safety legislation changes, additional funds for the screwworm eradication program, and the need for property tax reform.

The farmer-day in Austin will begin with a breakfast at 7 a.m. at the Downtowner Motel near the Capitol. Following a briefing by Farmers Union staff members, teams of rural men and women will visit members of the House and Senate on key issues affecting rural Texans.

Farmers Union has called on Governor Smith and members of the legislature to bring about meaningful reform to the trailer safety law passed in the last legislature, and to do something about the recent serious outbreak of screwworm infestation. Farmers Union has supported legislation to give farmers and ranchers ad valorem tax relief and has insisted that the legislature pass a corporate profits tax.

For those who say the railroads are at the beginning of the end, here's a progress report from Santa Fe that says it's much, much more like the end of a beginning.

MORE POWER
We're adding 52 new giant diesels and rebuilding 50 older units to provide a locomotive fleet producing over 3,850,000 horsepower.

MORE CARS
1910 additional cars are coming in 1972, including 100 giant refrigerated hopper cars for in-bulk movement of potatoes, oranges and other perishables.

MORE TERMINALS
Santa Fe's new million dollar rail and truck terminal has now been completed at Houston, Texas to meet expanding truck, Piggy-Back and container traffic.

BETTER SERVICE
Run through trains with connecting railroads link —east, west, and southwest and save hours moving through Santa Fe's electronic classification yard in Kansas City.

BETTER PIGGY-BACK
We're expanding Piggy-Back and container service all along the Santa Fe to handle increasing domestic and international shipments.

BETTER IDEAS
An expanding microwave network linked to our data system for car tracing and locomotive utilization, and plans for the development of a unique coaxial train for moving containers are just a few of the new ideas at work on the Santa Fe.

MORE and BETTER are key words at Santa Fe. What we're doing, is why we're saying, rail service is still one of the most efficient ways to move freight. What we're spending says so too: over $100 million this year in railway capital expenditures. One billion in the last 10 years. Two billion since World War II.

The railroad industry and the Nation need sensible transport regulatory policies—administered with an even hand. We can take it from there—into a new era of railroading.

Still think the railroads are at the beginning of the end? For Santa Fe it's more like the end of the beginning!

Santa Fe —The complete transportation company moving by rail, truck, air freight, pipeline and land development.

JOHN C. WHITE

White To Head Ag Delegation

Texas Agriculture Commissioner John C. White will head a delegation representing 24 state commissioners of agriculture at a hearing of the Democratic platform committee June 16 in Sioux City, Iowa.

White will present a national farm program which has been devised by the 24 agriculture commissioners. The commissioners are from all parts of the nation.

"Agriculture programs on a national level need a new approach and concept. There is a need for improvement of our environment through rural development and the survival of the family farm concept in agriculture. Unless we act quickly, we are going to lose the family farm type of agriculture which has made this nation the greatest on earth.

"The other commissioners of agriculture and I have spent a great deal of time and study and consultation with agriculture producers in our respective states to get their ideas on what is needed in national farm programs. We believe we have put together a program that will be acceptable to agriculture and to the rest of the economy," White said.

"The last Presidential election was determined by the rural vote. This can happen again in 1972. The Democratic Party can be the victor provided it offers a national farm program with positive approaches to achieving a prosperous agriculture and a quality environment," White said.

Civil Service Schools Not Necessary

Complaints and inquires are being received from local residents concerning the current operations of so-called "civil service" schools, Louis S. Lyon, director of the U.S. Civil Service Commission's Dallas region, said today.

No "civil service" school, Lyon said, is connected with the Civil Service Commission. No branch of the federal government gives coaching courses in preparation for civil service examinations, or has agents who offer such courses.

Also, no school can obtain special advantage for its students in civil service examinations or appointments. Schools that give special preparation for civil-service examinations are not given any advance or special information that is not available to the general public without cost.

No fee is charged for securing federal employment. It is not necessary to secure the services of a "civil service" school or complete a correspondence course to compete in civil service examinations.

Any person in the north Texas area who wishes information about civil service positions may call (toll free) 1-800-492-4400. Civil service examination announcements and information pamphlets will be furnished on request.

HONEYMOON

The wedding bells rang, the bride was radiant, the groom's mother cried, just a little, and the maid of honor caught the bouquet. It was a perfect wedding, and the honeymoon has been ideal.

Tomorrow, this young couple will be going home to begin a new way of life. In it, reality will be combined with romance. There will be the blending of two temperaments under a single roof. There will be all the frustrations of daily living, and the pain as well as the pleasure that comes with just being alive.

How will they adjust? That depends on the basics that were taught to them years ago, in their own homes—and in church.

Briscoe Thanks Texas Supporters

AUSTIN

Dolph Briscoe, Democratic gubernatorial nominee, thanked the people of Texas and reaffirmed his pledge to provide honesty and effectiveness in state government in his victory statement delivered here.

Greeted at campaign headquarters by reporters, campaign workers and exhuberant supporters, Briscoe, accompanied by his wife, Janey, and their three children, was immediately shuttled off to a press conference. Under the brightness of television camera lights, he issued the following statement:

"There are many people I want to thank tonight. First in my heart is my wife Janey, and our three children, for the strength they have given me and for the confidence they have in my ability to serve Texas.

"I also want to thank the countless number of people throughout the state who have actively worked for my campaign, particularly those who came forward during the early days last Fall when some observers gave us little hope of upsetting the political power structure. It is those people in every county of Texas who put aside their own personal lives many times to do that extra bit of work which always makes the difference between a winning campaign and a losing one.

"And, of course, I want to thank the people of Texas, all the people who gave us their warm welcome to our great cities and our wonderful small towns. I want to thank the people who believed in me and who voted for me and who offered encouragement every step of the way. Our victory tonight and a victory in November will mean that Texas is going to have a new government. I am going to do everything within my power as a human being and utilize every resource of the Governor's office to see that ours is a government which is responsive to the people. I will work to make it a governmentwhich works openly and effectively for progressive change. It will be a government which will strive to leave behind it a mark of excellence and not the strain of irresponsibility."

Congressman Jack Brooks of Beaumont, the Uvalde rancher-banker's longtime personal friend, was also on hand to congratulate Briscoe on his success at the voting polls.

Sunday, Briscoe returned to his ranch home, where he is combining a few days of well-deserved relaxation with making arrangements for parleys to determine his choice for chairman of the June 13 state party convention.

If you can't manage now, how are you going to manage later?

Money's tight. You feel pretty lucky if you can stretch your paycheck enough to meet all the everyday expenses. It's harder than ever to save a buck. And how are you going to take care of the future, when you've got enough trouble just taking care of the present?

But, you can manage to save—by joining the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. It's a sure way to get started on a nest egg that you can depend on in the future.

The amount you designate will be automatically set aside from your paycheck and used to buy U.S. Savings Bonds, before you get your check, and before you can spend it.

So, join the Payroll Savings Plan and start on your "secret stash" today. And then just relax and don't worry about tomorrow. You'll manage.

Now E Bonds pay 5½% interest when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). Bonds are replaced if lost, stolen, or destroyed. When needed they can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

As the coolness of the fall season sets in, the family is sure to welcome a hearty home-cooked meal featuring Cheese Puffed Pork Chops. A creamy Parmesan cheese sauce, seasoned with a touch of grated onion and parsley flakes, adds a new intriguing taste to the familiar flavor of tender, juicy pork chops.

With the change in the weather, too, comes increased concern for the family's health. Pork can play an important role in meeting nutritional needs. It is an especially good source of the B vitamins—thiamin, riboflavin and niacin. In addition, pork provides protein that includes all of the essential amino acids necessary to build, maintain and repair the body tissues and to increase resistance to infection and disease.

Puffed Pork Chops

Brown 6 pork rib chops, cut ¾ to 1 inch thick in 2 tablespoons lard or drippings. Season meat with 1 teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Melt 2 tablespoons butter or margarine in saucepan. Stir in ⅓ cup flour. Gradually add ⅔ cup milk, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add 1 slightly beaten egg and beat until mixture is shiny. Stir in 2 tablespoons grated onion, ½ cup Parmesan cheese, 2 tablespoons dehydrated parsley flakes, ½ teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Place chops on rack in open roasting pan. Top each chop with approximately 3 tablespoons cheese mixture. Cook, covered tightly, in a slow oven (325°F.) 30 minutes. Remove cover and continue cooking 20 to 30 minutes or until done. 6 servings.
